Failure of the FDA to require clear and specific labelling of irradiated foods prevents citizens from making informed decisions about the foods they choose to consume.

9436 99 JUL 28 AIO 58

I object strenuously to the loosening of labelling regulations, and particularly to the kind of misleading and untruthful labelling "hanky-panky" that allows irradiated milk to be labelled "Cold Pasteuized".

The FDA should not be in the business of usurping the right of the consumer to make informed choices, and should thus require clear and specific labelling on irradiated foods.

Thank you for your attention.
